

CHALLENGE 3

Art as Activism!

The Challenge:

- Imagine you are art curators and have been hired to curate a series of photos from the 1940s-present day showing the effects of The New Deal and redlining on communities. Research and find pictures that represent the effects of The New Deal and redlining.
- Be thoughtful in your work and position each photo on the wall in a way that tells an intentional story in relation to The American Dream.
- Caption each picture to assist in telling your story.

Helpful Hints:

- Discuss and arrange on your desks before hanging them up
- Hear everyone's ideas first and then come to an agreement
- Have a different group member speak on each photo when you present your work
- Come up with creative ways to caption the photos
